ONE
MESSAGE

 NAATP
National Association of Addiction
Treatment Providers

WELCOME

NAATP and the Great State of Texas welcome you to the 2010 Leadership Conference.

The next few days will provide you with the opportunity to renew friendships, make new acquaintances, exchange ideas, discuss challenges, embrace new ideas and have some fun.

The Exhibit area is the focal point to discover the latest technology, diversity of services and products to enhance your business. It is also a great place to find refreshments and catch up with old friends.

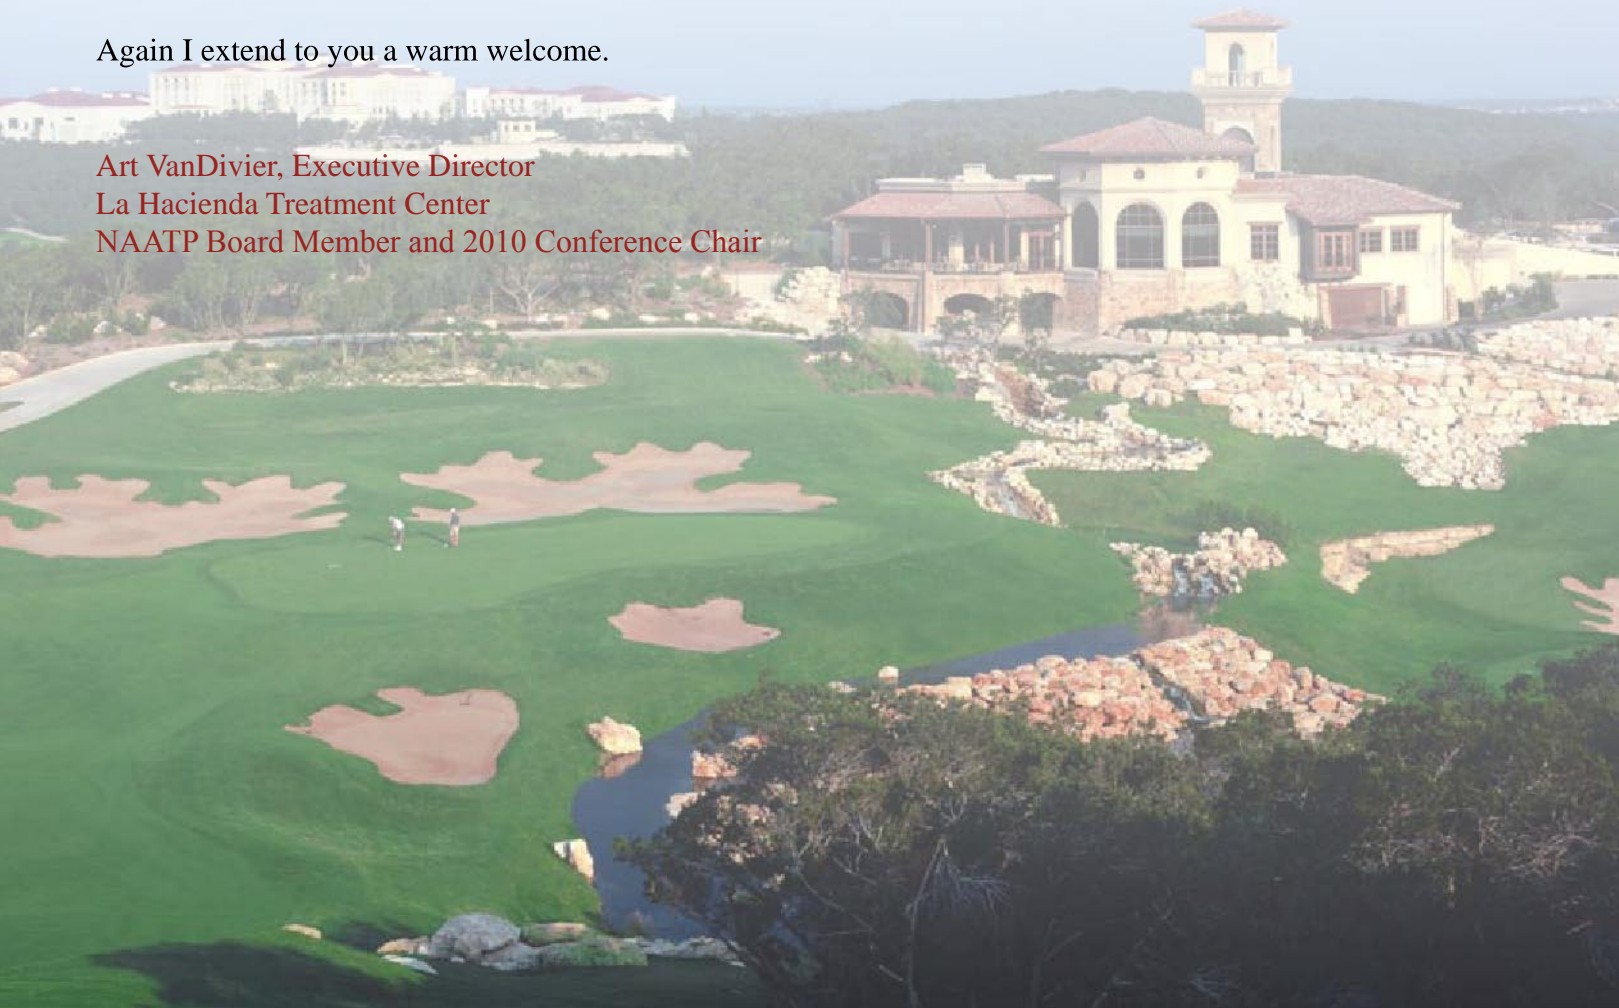

This conference was designed for you the leaders in our industry. We polled the membership and selected the most requested topics. I believe you will find interesting and challenging presentations await you.

It has been said that San Antonio captures the spirit of Texas. The seventh largest city in the United States, the city has retained its sense of history and tradition. The sounds and flavors of Native Americans, Old Mexico, Germans, the Wild West, African-Americans and the Deep South mingle to create a unique environment. The outing at Enchanted Springs Ranch brings many of these flavors together for an evening of food and fun.

The theme of this year's conference is One Voice One Message and that message is treatment works! Our voice must be heard by Washington DC, our State Governments and the Insurance Industry. Those individuals and their families caught in the trap of chemical dependency depend on us to lead the fight for their right to obtain the best treatment available. After the conference we are holding a PAC fundraiser. Please contribute to support the voice of our industry.

Again I extend to you a warm welcome.

Leadership Lessons from the Jazz Masters - John Edward Hasse

JAZZ MIGHT SEEM AN UNLIKELY PLACE TO LOOK FOR LESSONS IN LEADERSHIP. But jazz masters—such as Louis Armstrong, Duke Ellington, Miles Davis, and Ella Fitzgerald—have been among our nation's most consistently daring and innovative professionals, people who mastered the art of creative collaboration long before it became the buzz in corporate boardrooms. In this lively and insightful presentation Dr. John Edward Hasse distills the wisdom of the jazz masters into seven powerful lessons: Listen closely, Find your own sound, Take risks—improvise, Remain fresh—innovate, Find and nurture great talent, Collaborate creatively, and Jam. Hasse shows audiences how the collaborative nature of jazz provides leaders of every stripe with fresh sources of inspiration, innovative ideas, and practical advice for fully engaging and reinvigorating their leadership.

An Affordable Model for Research & Outcome Studies - Norman Hoffman, Ph.D. and Panel

This workshop will serve as a “focus group” to test the idea of the National Association of Addiction Treatment Providers beginning a process of identifying a core set of outcome measures to be collected from NAATP member organizations on an annual basis. This workshop will explore the value of outcome measures, explain the process and begin to identify the core measures. In order to move toward outcome measures, a set of standard demographic information will need to be collected as well as common language describing the treatment interventions and agreement on the “results of treatment” to be measured. This workshop will begin the process of moving the discussion and interest forward.

For the treatment of alcohol dependence

VIVITROL...
there when they need it.

For more information, go to www.VIVITROL.com

*Eligibility for Alkermes-sponsored co-pay assistance: Offer not valid for prescriptions purchased under Medicaid, Medicare or any federal or state healthcare program, including any state medical or pharmaceutical assistance program. Offer not valid in Massachusetts. Void where prohibited by law, taxed or restricted. Alkermes, Inc. reserves the right to rescind, revoke or amend these offers without notice.

INDICATION¹

VIVITROL[®] is indicated for the treatment of alcohol dependence in patients who are able to abstain from alcohol in an outpatient setting prior to initiation of treatment with VIVITROL.

Patients should not be actively drinking at the time of initial VIVITROL administration.

Treatment with VIVITROL should be part of a comprehensive management program that includes psychosocial support.

IMPORTANT SAFETY INFORMATION¹

VIVITROL is contraindicated in patients receiving opioid analgesics or with current physiologic opioid dependence, patients in acute opiate withdrawal, any individual who has failed the naloxone challenge test or has a positive urine screen for opioids, or in patients who have previously exhibited hypersensitivity to naltrexone, PLG, carboxymethylcellulose or any other components of the diluent.

VIVITROL patients must be opioid free for a minimum of 7-10 days before treatment. Attempts to overcome opioid blockade due to VIVITROL may result in a fatal overdose. In prior opioid users, use of opioids after discontinuing VIVITROL may result in a fatal overdose because patients may be more sensitive to lower doses of opioids. Patients requiring reversal of the VIVITROL blockade for pain management should be monitored by appropriately trained personnel in a setting equipped for cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Naltrexone has the capacity to cause hepatocellular injury when given in excessive doses.

Naltrexone is contraindicated in acute hepatitis or liver failure, and its use in patients with active liver disease must be carefully considered in light of its hepatotoxic effects.

The margin of separation between the apparently safe dose of naltrexone and the dose causing hepatic injury appears to be only five-fold or less. VIVITROL does not appear to be a hepatotoxin at the recommended doses.

Patients should be warned of the risk of hepatic injury and advised to seek medical attention if they experience symptoms of acute hepatitis. Use of VIVITROL should be discontinued in the event of symptoms and/or signs of acute hepatitis.

VIVITROL is administered as a gluteal intramuscular injection. Inadvertent subcutaneous injection of VIVITROL may increase the likelihood of severe injection site reactions. VIVITROL must be injected using the customized needle provided in the carton. Because needle length may not be adequate due to body habitus, each patient should be assessed prior to each injection to assure that needle length is adequate for intramuscular administration. VIVITROL injection site reactions may be followed by pain, tenderness, induration, swelling, erythema, bruising or pruritus; however, in some cases injection site reactions may be very severe. Injection site reactions not improving may require prompt medical attention, including in some cases surgical intervention.

Consider the diagnosis of eosinophilic pneumonia if patients develop progressive dyspnea and hypoxemia. In an emergency situation in patients receiving VIVITROL, suggestions for pain management include regional analgesia or use of non-opioid analgesics. Alcohol dependent patients, including those taking VIVITROL, should be monitored for the development of depression or suicidal thoughts. Caution is recommended in administering VIVITROL to patients with moderate to severe renal impairment.

The most common adverse events associated with VIVITROL in clinical trials were nausea, vomiting, headache, dizziness, asthenic conditions and injection site reactions.

Kypros Kypri, Ph.D

Kypros Kypri, Ph.D., Senior Research Fellow at the School of Medicine and Public Health at the University of Newcastle, Australia, has earned the latest Dan Anderson Research Award for his development of a web-based alcohol screening and brief intervention tool (e-SBI). Sponsored by the Butler Center for Research at Hazelden, the award honors a single published article by a researcher who has advanced the scientific knowledge of addiction treatment and recovery.

Kypri earned the award for his study, "Randomized controlled trial of web-based alcohol screening and brief intervention in primary care," published in a 2008 issue of the Archives of Internal Medicine (Vol. 168, pages 530-536). The study was a randomized controlled trial of web-based alcohol screening and brief intervention among a large group of university students seeking medical help at a primary healthcare facility. The web-based program is free and involves screening, assessment, personalized feedback about consumption levels compared to peers, and medical guidelines.

Bradford Health Services

The Healthcare Professional (HCP) program is designed to help impaired professionals resolve issues surrounding their chemical dependency and the unique difficulties they face as they re-enter their practice. Bradford offers a multi-disciplinary approach to treatment, which is headed by Medical Director, Michael Wilkerson, M.D. Our HCP Advocate is a licensed Registered Nurse with a Master's degree in Social Work. The objective of the HCP program is to facilitate recovery and a return to professional practice.

THERE IS HOPE AHEAD.
